And all at once, summer collapsed into fall – Oscar Wilde

Blackheath Car Park

The Car Park has been declared an asset of community value by Lewisham council following a campaign to refuse a proposed development. What is an asset of Community Value? It is buildings or land which are used for the well-being or social interest of the local community. The Car Park is central to Blackheath Village and used by commuters and busy lively space bringing much needed business to Blackheath. Lewisham planning committee are considering the impact on trade to Blackheath, social activity and the Farmers Market of the proposed development in the car park. The declaration of a community asset will not automatically refuse the development which includes a row shoppers alike. On a Sunday a Farmers Market is held from Noon to 2pm which in turn brings customers to the village where the shops are open to also meet the needs of the Market goers. It is a of terraced house, two blocks of flats and space for 40 Market Trader stalls. Eight of the 45 new homes would be for people on Lewisham's waiting list.

Newsbriefs

The Car Park adjacent to the chip shop in Old Dover Road was at auction on Thursday 10th September with a reserve price of £500,000. It was sold for £1,155,000. There is currently no information on its future use.

20mph speed limit throughout the borough. This will align with the other inner London boroughs.

The 5G phone mast application for a 20 M mast and three equipment boxes for Siebert Road has been refused by RBG, on the basis of its visual effect on the Conservation Area (views from Glenluce Road/Kirkside); inaccurate rendering of that view; inadequate exploration of whether another site might suffice.

Tackling anti-social behaviour in the Park.

Sadly there has been an increase in anti-social behaviour in the Park recently including dangerous cycling and criminal damage.

We can all help the Park by reporting incidents to 101 on the link:

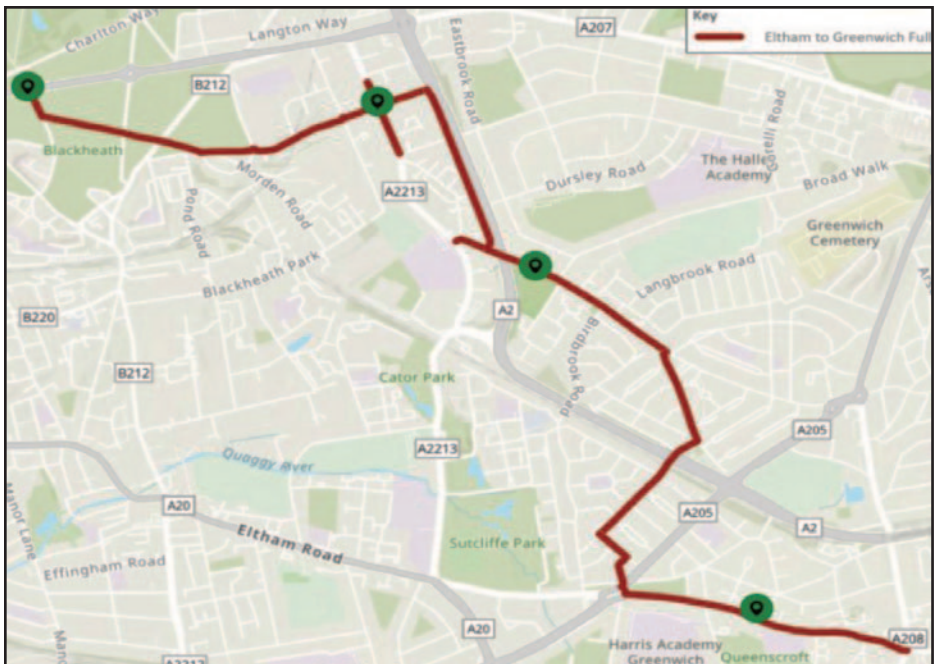

<https://www.met.police.uk/ro/report/>

Using the online link is quicker than a phone call and will generate a crime reference number. This builds up a database of reported issues. The more reports the better as this will help demonstrate the need for security to keep our lovely Park safe.

Cycle Path

The latest proposed addition to the network of cycle paths is a new route between Greenwich and Eltham, part of which goes across the heath.

damage to the heath, making a wider dedicated path for cyclists will only encourage cyclists to cycle faster than they already do and won't prevent both cyclists and Greenwich Councillor Calum O'Byrne Mulligan explained, "We want to make it safer and easier for people to travel between Eltham and Greenwich by walking, wheeling and cycling, while creating better connections to schools, public transport and local services." However, the proposal includes widening the paths on the heath, which many local people, cyclists included, are against. They say that widening paths is unnecessary. One local resident pointed out that pedestrians and cyclists have respected each other up to now and "whenever there is a potential clash then the cyclist or pedestrian easily uses the safe and flat adjacent heathland." Some also fear that, as well as pedestrians from wandering into the path of each other. What the result of the wider consultation is remains to be seen, but any changes would also have to be agreed by Lewisham Council and the Earl of Dartmouth, who owns the Lewisham side of the heath. The latter has refused to allow path widening in the past. The Blackheath Joint Working Party, which has a central role in protecting the use of the heath and preserving its fragile grasslands, is against reducing the amount of grassland without replacing it elsewhere. There have been successes in recent years both in limiting access for cars and in ensuring that events are well spaced and create as little damage as possible.

Thameslink Seats and Timetable

The opportunity was taken to try the new Thameslink train seats at London Bridge on 10th September. The old seat is on the
You can see that the new seat is deeper, giving more thigh support, and it is also deeper. In our view it is an improvement and slightly more comfortable, but the seat pitch (the gap between rows of seats) will remain the same so for reasonably tall people the space will remain tight. They are due to be fitted to all Thameslink trains from next spring.

The return to six trains an hour during daytime and Saturdays from December has now been confirmed by Southeastern. The timetable starts on 13 December and should be published in the next couple of weeks. This is a welcome return to pre-Covid service levels.

NEIGHBOURHOOD

Myles Dove - RIP

The Westcombe News is very sad to report the death of Myles Dove, at the great age of 99, peacefully in his sleep. Born in Sheffield, Myles was packed off to Abbotsholme School in Staffordshire, a school whose emphasis on experiential learning, environmentalism and global citizenship surely influenced him throughout his life.

School was followed by National Service in the RAF in India, a period he remembers with great affection, though it is likely he liked India more than the RAF; one of his treasured possessions was a journal of his time with atmospheric line-drawings and water colours. He loved showing it to visitors and reliving those distant times.

After training as an architect in Sheffield, he joined the architect's practice, Sheppard Robson in London, where he met fellow architect Deirdre Downer. Marriage and three children followed. Early on, they lived in a Georgian house in Bloomsbury, but they later moved to Greenwich; it was here that in 1965 Myles and Deirdre presided over sensitive restoration work in Our Ladye Star of the Sea on Crooms Hill, including a new gallery and a porch.

In 1968, they built their own house, at the top of Maze Hill, complicated because the site was quite small. They made the most of it; the result was a modernist masterpiece, showing with its uses of wood a Scandinavian influence. Number 129 Maze Hill was one of four finalists selected for the Architecture Today 'Test of Time' Individual House Award in 2026, a rare honour. It was in this house that they ran a very successful practice producing, amongst other things, Rippon Hall in Oxford, which won a Civic Trust Award, as well as a number of other works, including The Warrells in Lee Road.

Sadly, Deirdre passed away in her mid-fifties, much missed by Myles and their three children. This was a very difficult time for Myles and his family, and he was fortunate to find happiness with Barbara. Together they rebuilt their lives after a difficult period for each. They were keen cyclists – Barbara took part in a challenging bicycle charity rally across Europe.

Myles grew old gracefully; he celebrated his 70th birthday windsurfing in Portsmouth Harbour, he embraced computer technology effortlessly, and his use of Skype enabled him to keep in touch with his older sister Carol in Australia.

Myles and Barbara were closely involved with the local community in Westcombe Park. He advised on the Westcombe Society's planning committee, and for years acting as contributor to, and distribution manager of, the Westcombe News, Barbara joining him on the cycling deliveries. A loyal supporter of local churches (St Alfege's, St George's in Glenluce Road, St Nicholas in Deptford), he also led a personal campaign against graffiti, donning overalls and erasing it as soon as it was daubed. He was passionate about trees, and made a tree map of Westcombe Park.

Myles and Barbara had a wide circle not just of family, but many friends, and his passing will be deeply mourned by all who knew him. He has bequeathed to society not just lasting pieces of architecture, but three multi-talented children – Caroline and Simon are both accomplished architects, and Jonathan is an internationally famous composer – four grandchildren and two great-granddaughters. N.G.

A celebration of Myles's long life will be at St Alfege Church Greenwich SE10 9BJ on Thursday 8 October at 3pm. Please start arriving from 2:30pm. The service will be about an hour. There is no dress code. No flowers please but donations may be sent to Emmaus and Practical Action.

Blackheath Fireworks return again

Fireworks are returning to Blackheath on Saturday 7th November. The event will run from 5pm to 10pm, with fireworks scheduled for 8pm. The format will be a ticketed event similar to the one held in 2025 but 'with improvements', say the organisers. As we understand it, there will be no restrictions on those who wish to watch the fireworks from outside the event, though the display will be designed to give the best view to those who have bought tickets, as was the case last year.

The changes to the event were not presented to the BJWP (Blackheath Joint Working Party), as they should have been, despite changes to the location and size of the event. This means that advance information and discussion of concerns have been limited to an online event in the middle of the school holidays, when many were away. There was also a new application for a licence, but unfortunately those on the Greenwich side of the heath were not aware of this.

The number of tickets available will be greater this year, but organisers hope that providing three entrances will alleviate the bottlenecks experienced last year. The footprint is also larger, which means more of the heath will be enclosed, including an area of good acid grassland. One entrance will be next to Talbot Place, which is understandably not popular with local residents.

It appears that roads will be closed in Blackheath and buses diverted from 3pm, possibly earlier. This means that no buses will serve Blackheath Village from 3pm, with the nearest bus stops being in central Lewisham, Lee Green or Maze Hill. Due to the lack of discussion with BJWP, it is unclear whether any roads will be closed in Westcombe Park and how parking will be controlled. The Westcombe Society has asked for consideration to be given to closing roads and introducing parking controls to protect pedestrians and the heath. At minimum, vehicles should be prevented from parking on the heath, both for protection of the heath and for the protection of pedestrians.

More information on the event, road closures, bus diversions and tickets for the event are available on blackheathfireworks.com.

Birds, Bees, Fungi and Cheap(er) Coffee

As well as being a lovely place for a stroll Greenwich Park is a great place for wildlife with its many mature trees and areas of acid grassland. You can get involved with the bugs and beasties through joining the Friends of Greenwich Park. I recently went on one of their bat walks. Everyone was given a bat monitor to listen for their approach and it was a thrill to hear the bats coming then have them swoop over our heads in the dusk.

Gatekeeper butterfly in the park – credit Sally Moore

The Friends also do regular bird walks, occasional tree and fungi walks and children’s nature activities. A recent addition was a study day on bumble bees and monthly walks to spot these in partnership with the Bumblebee Conservation Trust. There are groups monitoring frogs and newts and also butterflies and new members are always welcome. The work of these groups will show the impacts of changes to the park for instance the replanting of the Rose Garden including the new meadow area has substantially increased the number and variety of butterflies seen there.

Bat walk 1 and 2 – credit Will Fox, Friends of Greenwich Park

The Royal Parks also encourage volunteers. They organise practical work in the park, volunteer rangers and the butterfly survey. There are also many opportunities at other Royal Parks across London including Richmond and Bushy – two parks with fantastic wildlife. Finally the coffee – 25% off food and non-alcoholic drinks in the cafés in the park when you join the Friends!

M&S Car park
I am a resident in the Westcombe Park area of Blackheath and regularly shop in Marks & Spencer at Blackheath Royal Standard. The one-hour parking restriction is making it very difficult to complete my shopping and on Friday 5 June, I incurred an £85 parking fine for going over the hour by 17 minutes. On that day, I took my car to the store because I was carrying out a weekly shop, as I do almost every week, and as a person in my seventies with arthritis, I cannot possibly carry my shopping home. On that day I visited the butcher, the greengrocer, the pet shop and the chemist (these are all local independent stores that rely on the local population for their trade) before spending over £150 in Marks & Spencer. However, I spent almost all the hour in Marks & Spencer; as is common, I often speak to people I know when I shop in the store. I feel that I have been severely penalised, even if I pay within 14 days, I will still incur a charge of £50 making my weekly shop in M&S no longer viable and I now feel unable to do my weekly shopping in M&S at the Standard. This means that I will choosing either Sainsbury’s or Waitrose in Charlton or Greenwich respectively. This will more than double the carbon footprint and brings other challenges as a result of the LTN arrangements.

If the Council proceeds with the sale of the car park in Old Dover Road, I fear that will spell the end of local independent businesses and in particular, our lovely local, independent cafes and remove a lot of local employment options. I have copied in the Westcombe Society and Greenwich Borough as I am aware that there are a lot of other people around Westcombe Park who are also unhappy with the changes.
Yours faithfully,
Mrs Lorraine Harper

Re: Refusal of planning permission for 20m high telecoms mast in Siebert Road.
We are delighted that the proposal for this mast, barely 50ft from our Forest School entrance on Siebert Road, has been refused planning permission by the Royal Borough. We are immensely grateful to the Westcombe Society, Geoff Brighty for his personal interest in this matter and the Westcome Society Environment Committee for their strong stance against this proposal. We also thank all of our neighbours and school families for their united support.

Ambiguous Proposition

Ambiguous Proposition – a compelling, thought-provoking play at the Bakehouse Theatre in Blackheath

The Bakehouse Theatre in Blackheath is a small but thriving creative theatre space just behind the Age Exchange café in Blackheath Village. The production was put on by Wait, What? Production in association with MillerMoss.

There, we found a compelling one-woman play exploring one of the most complex and divisive issues of our time - allegations of sexual harassment. Margaret Woods is a successful, if slightly bitter employment judge in mid-life prime. Performed courageously and fiercely by Hilary Cordery who is an award-winning actor and director who was once an employment lawyer herself. Writer and co-director Shona Newmark practised as an employment lawyer for over 30 years before retiring last year and channelling her expertise into playwriting.

Margaret Woods, the character, is passionate about her work and family, assertive swears and she weaves the narrative into identifying with post-menopause killer whales who fiercely protect their adult sons. The sexual harassment case focuses on her son Bradley who, as a twenty-something fresh out of college, is slightly naïve in thinking a workplace flirtation can be a casual affair, while being targeted so Margaret believes by a ‘manipulative’ woman at his workplace with dire consequences. Margaret is initially confident that her knowledge of the law can make this family problem go away...

The play challenges assumptions and invites audiences to examine the evidence for themselves. It is thought-provoking, fast-paced and wryly comedic reminding us of the reality of the workplace in 2026 and all the issues that go with it.

Do get along to the Bakehouse to see this play and their two upcoming ones 1 King, 2 Princes and Shakespeare’s Lie and A Forgotten Woman: Mrs Oscar Wilde both in November. Find out more at www.millermoss.co.uk

Crime Prevention Alert: Distraction Burglaries

We have recently received reports of distraction burglary incidents in the ward, where individuals have approached residents claiming to be from NatWest Bank. Please remember:

- Always be cautious of unexpected callers at your door.
- Do not let anyone into your home unless you are expecting them and have verified their identity.
- Genuine bank staff will not normally visit your home without a pre-arranged appointment.
- If someone claims to be from a bank, utility company, or any other organisation, ask them to leave and contact the organisation directly using a trusted phone number.
- Keep doors locked, even when you are at home.

Please look after elderly family members, friends, and neighbours, as criminals often target those who may be more vulnerable. Take a few minutes to speak with them about distraction burglaries and remind them never to feel pressured into opening their door or allowing strangers into their home.

If you see anything suspicious or have concerns about callers in your area, please report it. In an emergency or if a crime is in progress, always call 999.

Stay vigilant and help protect our community. By looking out for one another, we can help prevent residents from becoming victims of crime

Poppy Appeal

Readers may find it helpful to know in advance that volunteers will endeavour to make the usual house to house collection again this year between 23 October and Sunday 8 November and inside Marks and Spencer on most days between 30 October and Armistice Day, 11 November. Poppies and enamel lapel badges will be brought round on dry days to the addresses visited in the past by Captain Kerr, and possibly more widely.

Each collector hopes to be provided with a card reader. Donations can therefore be accepted by card, cash or cheque. Cheques are requested to be made payable to “The Poppy Appeal”. Gift Aid Forms will be available which, if you are a taxpayer, means that 25% will be added to the donation for the Royal British Legion at no extra cost to the donor.

Thank you.

Women in Politics - Public Talk

Set against a backdrop of ongoing debate over how accessible political life really is for women — from council chambers to conflict zones — UNA Blackheath & Greenwich, in conjunction with the University of Greenwich, is hosting a public talk with two speakers who have built careers navigating exactly that question.

The talk will be held on Tuesday 6 October at the University of Greenwich, forming part of the University's Political Insights series, guest speakers will give short presentations, followed by a Q&A session. Keynote speakers:

Denise Scott-McDonald, will give a perspective on how to get involved at local government level – and the issues facing would-be Members of Parliament.

Dr Fatiha Serour will give a very different, international perspective. Tuesday 6 October, doors open 6.15pm for 6.30pm start. Greenwich University, Stockwell Street, Room TBC. The event is free of charge and open to all.

ENVIRONMENT

Helping our gardens recover from drought

After a summer of scorching sunshine, four heatwaves and no rain, most of our gardens are looking worse for wear, and brown lawns, shrivelled leaves, and premature leaf drop can be discouraging. But there is some good news: many plants can recover surprisingly well once the rain comes. The key is to resist the temptation to do everything at once. Gentle treatment and patience are required. Gardens need time to recover.

1. Don't panic about shrivelled plants: Heat and drought can make plants look far worse than they really are. Shrivelled brown leaves do not necessarily mean the roots have died and I have decided to wait until the Spring to see if my perennials sprout back. To check if a plant has really died, scratch a small section of the surface of the stem to see if it is still green underneath. If it's green, then there is life still in the plant. If it's brown then that section may have died.

When a tree is severely stressed it may drop its leaves: this is a protective mechanism as the tree is shedding parts that need water. This, however, may weaken a tree, especially if drought becomes a common feature of our summers, as the early drop reduces the period of photosynthesis and hence the amount of sugars that can be stored. These stored sugars give the tree the energy it needs to live and grow.

2. Don't be tempted to prune: It can be tempting to cut every dead-looking stem away immediately. Pruning stimulates a plant to produce fresh shoots and leaves which creates an immediate demand for water and nutrients that a drought-stressed root system cannot provide, often leading to dieback. So it's best not to prune until the root system is fully rehydrated and energised. This probably means waiting a few months. Only remove completely dead, diseased, or broken tree branches if they could injure someone, or lead to spread of disease from an infected branch.

3. Don't rush to rescue the lawn: Grass is remarkably resilient and can simply go dormant during prolonged dry weather and can recover when sufficient rain arrives. Your lawn might be like mine – very dry and compacted, with bare patches. October is an ideal time for scarifying the lawn with a rake to remove dead grass, and spiking it deeply with a garden fork to help aerate the soil and enable rain to penetrate more easily. Ideally you should push the tines of the fork to their full depth, or at least $\frac{3}{4}$ of the way down, to reach the root zone and then wiggle the fork gently to and fro to ease compaction and let in water, oxygen and nutrients. Do this every 15-20cm over the lawn (enlist helpers if you can!). Do this when the lawn is moist but not soggy, and avoid walking on it after decompacting.

Avoid using lawn weedkillers or fertilisers on drought-affected turf: wait until the Spring. But you can reseed any bare patches in the Autumn as the warm soil will aid germination.

4. Do give your soil some TLC: Within soils there is an abundance of microscopic life and drought stresses the entire soil system. Well-structured soils are better at resisting drought because they have improved water infiltration and retention, unlike poorly-structured soils that are prone to rapid drying and run-off. To improve soil resilience, once the soil is adequately moist a) replenish organic matter by adding compost, leaf mould, well-rotted manure, or composted bark, b) re-establish a mulch layer and c) limit soil disturbance to encourage soil life. (For more information on soils see recent July/August issue 'The treasure beneath our feet' and the September issue for plants that are 'Winners, losers and survival tips'). And if you wish to replant, October is a good time whilst the soil is still warm.

Our gardens may not bounce back overnight, but with the recent showers and a little patience and care, many will recover and the changes we make now can leave them better prepared for the next hot, dry summer.

Forging Ahead at Mycenae Gardens

The Friends of Mycenae Gardens committee launched its new website at PARKSfest in August with glorious cake and a new history trail for the park. The website, at <https://mycenaegardens.uk/>, has been thoroughly redesigned. It's now much easier to find events such as volunteer sessions and other ways to enjoy this much-loved park. With a large part of its space devoted to supporting wildlife, naturally we are thrilled to present a free wildlife spotting game as well. You can use it to record the plants, trees, animals and insects that you see in the course of your visit, which racks up points for you – and helps us keep track of the species living in the area. It's easy to play, but please respect the rules and only include things you actually find in the park!

The website will also feature some of the upcoming work we're starting to plan for the park. Most excitingly, we've received a substantial grant from the National Lottery Community Fund to extend the work of Mycenae House's Reach Out project into gardening and access to nature. This brilliant programme supports those that are socially isolated and suffer poor physical and mental health and loneliness in our community. Using sessions including seated exercise, music and games, Reach Out brings people together to improve their well-being and support their carers.

Now, our plan is to develop a pilot programme that will help bring Reach Out users into the gardens, whether to spot wildlife or develop gardening awareness. This grant has also been supplemented with funds from the Greenwich Parks Forum. We expect sessions to begin in the spring, as it will take time to hire a trained session leader and fully develop the programme, but it will be a great way to extend the use of the park to people who might not ordinarily come into it.

Some of this funding has been earmarked for extending access in the gardens, as well as setting up the pilot. We are hoping to build planters that will be usable for people with limited mobility, and to create a wheelchair-friendly path.

And there is some money for plants, as well. This has, of course, been a tough year for gardens, and the park is no exception. Its soil is very free-draining, and it gets a lot of use, making the lawn almost impossible to keep green in such challenging conditions. Some of the shrubs and herbaceous plants have suffered terribly, and we won't know till spring whether some of them have survived. Our aim, now, is to surround the beds with decorative hedges, which will eventually replace the chestnut fencing and give a bit more stability to the plants within. It'll take a while to accomplish this – don't expect instant results – but we hope you'll enjoy seeing this park evolve and broaden its appeal even more.

Lecturer: Lucrezia Walker
Venue: Blackheath High School
£65 for 10 lectures (guests very welcome: £10)
A successful Viennese painter of architectural decorations in a conventional manner, Klimt's later more personal style was criticized as pornographic. He subsequently accepted no more public commissions, but achieved a new success with the paintings of his 'golden phase, The Kiss being perhaps his most famous. Lucrezia Walker is a regular lecturer at the National Gallery. She is adjunct professor of art history for the University of North Carolina's Study Abroad semesters in London.
